DESCRIPTION

(Silvia Fasana)

The Chapel of St. James is traditionally dated back to the 19th Century; according to Donato Gregorio, author of a research on Argegno, it could have been realized in order to give to the Saint a place of devotion after the desecration of the homonymous chapel in the nearby castle. Until a few decades ago it had a wooden statue of the Saint worshipped in Compostela; today remains her printed image, in the traditional iconography of a pilgrim, almost to ensure his protection to those who were climbing up to the church of St. Ann.
